Live Like a Local

Romiana Lee/Shutterstock.com

Visit Greater New Haven, and you'll find a place of intriguing contradictions. Home to one of the nation's oldest cities, the region is bursting with innovation. Here urban streetscapes meet coastal beaches, and famous attractions stand beside hidden gems. Whether you want to live like a local or be our guest, Greater New Haven offers something for you to enjoy.

The world class Yale University Art Gallery and Yale Center for British Art are a must-see for art lovers, but New Haven also boasts its own vibrant community of working artists, who exhibit at several city and regional galleries. The Elm City is also home to numerous theatres, dance troupes, symphony orchestras, concert venues, and public art displays.

New Haven's entrepreneurial spirit nurtures restaurateurs cooking up world cuisine, from French delicacies at the Union League Café to Central and South Indian street food at Sherkaan and all-American hamburger sandwiches at historic Louis' Lunch. But its specialty is "apizza," pronounced "ah-beets," the culinary contribution of the city's Italian immigrants. The famous Sally's and Pepe's pizza parlors vie with several other top contenders for the title Best Pizza Ever. Throughout the region, you'll also find a cornucopia of coffee shops, ice cream parlors, breweries, wineries, and farm markets to please your palate.

In Greater New Haven, you can spend a day at the beach, explore the Thimble Islands by boat, or hike popular Sleeping Giant State Park. If shopping is your motivation to walk, browse the city's Chapel Street boutiques or The Shops at Yale, or take a trip to the Connecticut Post Mall or Clinton Premium Outlets. Step out to listen to live music or dance the night away at one of New Haven's popular bars and clubs. There's always something to do!

This land was first home to the Quinnipiac peoples, whose story is told through artifacts at the Dawnland Collection of Native American Artifacts at the Dudley Farm Museum. English settlers arrived in 1638. New Haven began as a planned city of nine blocks, which are still part of its footprint today, including the iconic New Haven Green with its three picturesque churches and central fountain. The city's rich and turbulent history is documented in exhibits at the New Haven Museum.

Whatever your reason for visiting, we look forward to sharing our region with you. Come see for yourself all New Haven has to offer!

Visual art, theatre, music, and dance intersect to create a lively arts scene in Greater New Haven. Here, you can experience Yale University Art Gallery's collection, which stretches from antiquities to modern and contemporary works by Pablo Picasso, Georges Braque, and Wassily Kandinsky, to name a few. The Yale Center for British Art holds the largest collection of British art outside the United Kingdom, including works by J.M.W. Turner, Thomas Gainsborough, and John Constable. Encounter accomplished local artists at Kehler Liddell Gallery, City Gallery, and other local venues. Artspace, NXTHVN, and the Ely Center of Contemporary Art show cutting-edge work in ongoing special exhibitions.

Long Wharf Theatre, Yale Repertory Theatre, and the Shubert Theatre in New Haven and the brand new Legacy Theatre in Stony Creek as well as several experimental venues bring works to the stage year-round. For live music, catch a classical concert from the New Haven Symphony Orchestra or rock out at the brand new Westville Music Bowl or College Street Music Hall.

New Haven is also home to several blockbuster festivals, including the International Festival of Arts & Ideas, now in its 27th year, which brings international acts and local favorites to stages citywide each June. In July, the Guilford Art Center hosts Craft Expo, offering handmade crafts by 180 nationally recognized American artists. And every October, Artspace's Open Source Festival (formerly Citywide Open Studios) invites the public into artists' studios for a closer look at their work.

A Haven for History Buffs

Make New Haven Museum your first stop for a history of the region and its people, from the Quinnipiac tribe to the first English settlers to immigrants from around the world. Permanent exhibits include “From Clocks to Lollipops: Made in New Haven,” treasures from the decorative arts collection, and artifacts of the Amistad Uprising and the famous trial that began here and ended in the Supreme Court. Genealogy buffs will find the museum’s Whitney Library an invaluable resource.

For a closer look at the city’s African-American history, take Walk New Haven’s Lower Dixwell self-guided walking tour, or create your own route through this walkable city. Explore the Grove Street Cemetery—final resting place of luminaries like Noah Webster and Eli Whitney—and the New Haven Green with its three iconic churches, including Center Church, whose crypt contains remnants of the city’s original burial ground. Yale University offers guided tours of its campus, located here since 1716.

Greater New Haven’s architecture runs the gamut from extant colonial buildings to 20th-century gems designed by Louis Kahn, Paul Rudolph, and Eero Saarinen. Historic structures throughout the region include the Pardee-Morris House (New Haven), Harrison House (Branford), Reynolds-Beers House (North Branford), The Dudley Farm Museum (Guilford), Allis-aushnell House and Museum (Madison), Andrews Homestead (Meriden), Jonathan Dickerman House (Hamden), Thomas Griswold House (Guilford), Thomas Darling House (Woodbridge), and the oldest house in Connecticut, Guilford’s Henry Whitfield State Museum.

The Dinner Detective Murder Mystery Dinner Show

If you like being involved with everything you do, this is the dinner theater for you. There's a murderer on the loose – and they might even be at your table! This dinner theater is interactive and everyone is encouraged to talk to other attendees to try and figure out whodunit before dessert ends, and since some of the performers are dressed in street clothes, you may end up working with them to work out the mystery without even knowing. A prize is awarded for the sleuth who gets closest to the right answer, but everyone in attendance wins with the great entertainment and delicious meal.

Whatever You Choose, You Won't Walk Away Hungry

The Wharf Restaurant at the Madison Beach Hotel

Dom Miguel

Greater New Haven covers just 369 square miles, but our cuisine will take you around the world. New Haven's history of welcoming immigrants translates into a culinary feast that covers five continents. Try Lalibela's Ethiopian menu or the best of Thailand at Mai Tai Restaurant. Sample Afro-Cuban cuisine at Soul de Cuba or Latin American fusion at Pacifico. The Union League Café is a French favorite, and Lúdàl Italian Restaurant is an elegant Italian trattoria. Jalapeño Heaven specializes in Mexican dishes, while The Wharf serves up New American cuisine. This list is just an appetizer of the culinary choices waiting for you throughout the region.

Don't forget to order drinks! Established wineries include Chamard, Gouveia, Paradise Hills, Savino, Rose, and Rosabianca. Beer flows throughout the region as well. Among the most popular breweries are Stony Creek Brewery in Branford, with seating overlooking the Branford River, and New Haven's own East Rock Brewing Company.

New Haven is best known, of course, as the home of pizza. Rivals

Sally's Apizza and Frank Pepe Pizzeria Napoletana go up against other hometown favorites like Modern Apizza, BAR, Zuppardi's Apizza, and Zeneli Pizzeria & Cucina Napoletana. Visit a few and judge for yourself which one serves up the best slice.

Connecticut's rich farmland means many of our restaurants have embraced local produce. Menus vary with the seasons as our imaginative chefs integrate fresh ingredients into both new and traditional recipes. You can buy fresh yourself at pop-up farmers' markets and shops like Bishop's Orchards Farm Market in Guilford and Hindinger Farm in Hamden.

A full day of sightseeing should include a break for refreshments, too. Check out the many coffee shops, ice cream parlors, and small cafes along the way, including the top-rated Arethusa Farm Dairy in New Haven, Ashley's Ice Cream in New Haven and Guilford, and Willoughby's Coffee & Tea in New Haven, Branford, and Madison, among others.

IMPORTANT CONNECTICUT LAWS FOR VISITORS

Cell Phone Usage in Motor Vehicles

Connecticut law requires drivers 18 years of age and older to use hands-free accessories to legally use a cell phone or mobile electronic device while operating a motor vehicle. Under the law, drivers 16 or 17 years of age are prohibited from using any mobile telephone, including phones with hands-free accessories, while driving. Also, no person shall use a hand-held mobile telephone or other electronic device or type, read or send text or a text message with or from a mobile telephone or mobile electronic device while operating a motor vehicle.

Liquor Laws The legal drinking age in Connecticut is twenty-one.

Seat Belts and Child Restraint Systems

Connecticut law states (1) Infants must remain rear-facing until they are a minimum of both 2 year and 30 pounds; (2) Toddlers must be in a forward facing car seat with 5 point harness until 5 years and 40 pounds; (3) Children should ride in a booster until they reach 8 years old AND 60 pounds (they must meet both requirements); and (4) children, tweens and teens must be in a seat belt whenever they ride in a vehicle.

Further Recommended: Children should ride in the back seat until they are 13 years old. All people and objects should be properly restrained whenever they are in a vehicle. Children who ride in a booster seat must use a lap and shoulder belt.

Living in Greater New Haven

Welcome to Greater New Haven, a vibrant region of small cities, comfortable suburbs and charming rural communities ideally situated between New York and Boston. No matter your lifestyle, you'll find it here between the sandy shores of Long Island Sound and the rolling hills of interior Connecticut.

Home to seven colleges and universities, one of the largest hospital systems in the country and a balance of corporate headquarters, small businesses and non-profit organizations, the Greater New Haven region thrives in part due to its diversity of employment opportunities and people. As a true global community, the region's residents hail from around the world, some with roots centuries deep and others who have just arrived, making life here a rich cultural experience.

The community comes together for numerous annual events, festivals and parades celebrating the arts, culture, and athletics. But when you're ready to travel out of town, it's easy to get away. New Haven is located at the intersection of interstates 91 and 95, with easy access to local and long-distance train and bus service, Tweed-New Haven regional airport and Bradley International Airport just 40 miles up the road in Hartford.

There's no better place to start a career or business, raise a family or retire than Greater New Haven. We hope you'll become our newest neighbor!

Some of the benefits of living in Connecticut have been in the spotlight since March 2020. Less dense towns with beautiful parks and beaches provided safe recreation areas for residents of all ages. In addition, Connecticut's public school system is one of the best in the nation making it an ideal setting for young families. With New Haven as the region's core city, there is no shortage of cultural institutions, restaurants, and shopping.

The types of housing in Greater New Haven runs the gamut from 19th century classics to state-of-the-art sustainable homes. Homeowners in New Haven County have seen their home values increase by 20% in Q2 2021 over Q2 2020.* Developers recognize the appeal of the region and are continuing to invest in new development projects. As of summer 2021, there are approximately 800 apartments under construction and more than 3,000 apartments in New Haven's development pipeline.

The towns of Greater New Haven are working on a collective housing plan with the South Central Connecticut Regional Council of Governments. Recognizing that housing needs are changing, the group is considering policies to accommodate people who want to buy their first home, downsize in their community, and have affordable housing options outside of the cities.

When you are ready to begin your search for your new home, you can find a local realtor through the Connecticut Association of Realtors.

With the widespread acceptance of working from home or in a hybrid model, employees now have more options on where to live and different expectations on what their new home should offer. With rail service offered to New York City (both Grand Central Terminal and Penn Station), Boston and Hartford, it is easy to work in any of these cities while residing in Greater New Haven. One of the perks of choosing Greater New Haven is rental costs can be 50% less than these larger cities according to August 2021 data from rentcafe.com.

Regional Economic Overview

Yale New Haven Health

New Haven is generally recognized as the economic engine of Connecticut, particularly in bioscience. In June 2021, Downtown Crossing kicked off Phase 3 of a multi-year transformational project. Phase 3 includes the construction of 101 College Street with 500,000 sq. feet of new bioscience space. 100 College Street was completed in 2015 and is fully occupied. This comprehensive project includes the transformation of an expressway into pedestrian and bicycle-friendly boulevards designed with the active participation of the community. Ultimately, Downtown Crossing will create acres of developable land and a vibrant center of life in the medical district.

Research institutions in the region received over $660 billion in National Institute of Health (NIH) funding in fiscal year 2020, placing New Haven in a class with Seattle, Boston, Baltimore, Durham, Philadelphia, and other cities with advanced research centers. With the Yale School of Medicine driving growth, Greater New Haven is now the 2nd largest biotech cluster in New England.

Pandemic recovery is well underway in Greater New Haven. As many of our businesses were deemed essential, they remained open throughout the pandemic. In addition, our healthcare and higher education sectors joined forces to implement extensive testing and to stand up vaccination centers creating an environment for sector reopening throughout our economy. Connecticut was the first state to have 70% of its eligible population vaccinated in May 2021. These efforts have boosted consumer confidence and allowed residents to return to many of their former activities. Hospitality and leisure continue to lag in recovery and is not expected to fully recover until 2024. Nonetheless, we have two new hotels opening this year and one slated for mid-2023. Given the 18 hotels in the pipeline at the beginning of the pandemic, we anticipate more of those projects to be restarted as demand increases.

Annual Industry Distribution of Jobs by Key Sectors

ECONOMIC RECOVERY

Greater New Haven is fortunate to have five solid sectors supporting our economy: healthcare; higher education; bioscience; manufacturing; and arts, culture, and tourism. The region, as around the globe, endured high unemployment during the early days of the pandemic. However, our economy fared better than most. From the beginning, numerous businesses were designated as essential and many of the jobs in our region can be performed remotely allowing many workers to continue to work.

ANNUAL INDUSTRY DISTRIBUTION OF JOBS BY KEY SECTORS	%	JOBS
Healthcare and Social Services	36.19%	75,847
Educational Services	23.96%	50,221
Arts, Entertainment and Tourism	12.27%	25,716
Manufacturing	13.55%	28,402
Professional, Scientific and Technical Services	7.01%	14,698
Finance and Insurance	4.69%	9,822
Information	2.32%	4,870
Total Number of Jobs in Key Sectors		209,576

The healthcare sector continues to thrive in Greater New Haven. Yale New Haven Health (YNHH) is a full-fledged healthcare delivery network that includes Yale New Haven Hospital, Bridgeport Hospital (Bridgeport and Milford Campuses), Greenwich Hospital, Lawrence + Memorial Hospital, Westerly Hospital, and Northeast Medical Group. With more than 28,500 employees and 6,911 medical staff, Yale New Haven Health had over 119,000 inpatient discharges and 3.7 million outpatient encounters in Fiscal Year 2020. YNHH is the primary teaching hospital for Yale School of Medicine.

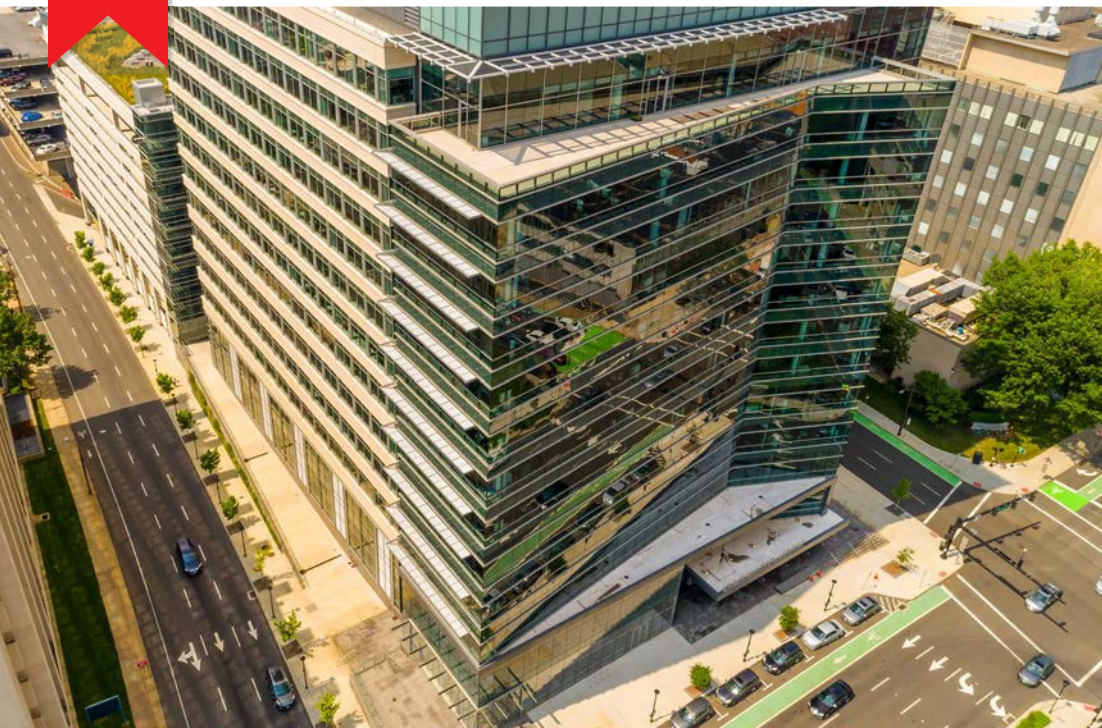

As one of the first states hit with the coronavirus in March 2020, there were virtually no treatment protocols for the virus and very limited testing. To meet the unexpected demand for medical services, YNHH fundamentally altered their operations to care for an overwhelming number of COVID-19 patients. YNHH provided excellent care for COVID patients and worked diligently to educate the public on safety measures.

In fall 2020, the second wave was upon us. While still without a vaccine, YNHH significantly lowered the number of COVID hospital admissions, COVID patients in the ICU, and patients on ventilators. As vaccines became available, the health system stood up multiple vaccine centers, including one at Yale West Campus, and by April 2021 had delivered over 300,000 vaccines.

The region has two additional inpatient hospitals: VA Connecticut Healthcare System and MidState Medical Center.

Bioscience is growing in Greater New Haven. Anchored by scientific research at Yale, the region's bioscience cluster includes both large pharmaceutical companies and small startups, developing new drugs, therapies and medical devices. With a statewide priority focus on bioscience, the South Central Connecticut region is ground zero for bioscience infrastructure of skilled scientists, technicians.

In the past year, there have been blockbuster deals between Pfizer and Arvinas on a breast cancer drug, as well as the $39 billion acquisition of Alexion by AstraZeneca. Alexion is a global biopharmaceutical company focused on developing life-changing therapies for people living with rare disorders. Alexion was the primary tenant of 100 College Street, the first of two bioscience towers in the Downtown Crossing project. The construction of the second tower, 101 College Street, is underway with lease agreements in place with both Arvinas and Yale University. The new space will allow startup bioscience companies expand into graduation space vacated by other companies.

LOCAL COMPANIES

CaroGen Corporation provides a platform technology for generating vaccines that target specific immune responses and creating more potent immune therapies.

Cornovus Pharmaceuticals is a developer of a heart attack drug used to treat cardiac hypertrophy and heart failure.

Cybrea Therapeutics alphalex is a tumor targeting platform that powers new applications and combinations of existing cancer therapeutics.

L2 Diagnostics is a biotechnology company with focus on new small molecule therapeutics, vaccines, and diagnostics for immunological and infectious diseases.

Oui Therapeutics, LLC and its affiliate Vita Health, are leaders in developing and providing digitally driven solutions for complex and challenging health problems, including suicide prevention.

ReNetX Bio is developing first-in-class therapeutics for people living with currently incurable neurological disorders.

Thetis Pharmaceuticals is developing a pipeline of therapies for solid tumor cancers and autoimmune diseases.

Virscio develops and provides advanced preclinical models, methods and technologies to improve therapeutic innovation and R&D efficiency.

Yale University

Michael Marsland/Yale

New Haven is home to Yale University, one of the most respected universities in the world. Yet Yale is only one of the seven colleges in Greater New Haven. Drawing approximately 50,000 students from around the globe, higher education creates a highly skilled workforce and provides a wide-range of jobs within the colleges themselves.

The colleges offer an extensive range of concentrations including forensic science at the University of New Haven’s Henry C. Lee Institute, BioPath at Southern Connecticut State University, and the expanding offerings at Quinnipiac University, including the Frank H. Netter MD School of Medicine and the School of Nursing. The colleges’ curricula support our most vibrant industries.

With over 30,000 employees, Greater New Haven’s colleges and universities also offer a wide range of career opportunities. Yale University provides exceptional research opportunities. However, a quick peek at any of the major job posting sites demonstrates the diversity of available career paths. The positions can be highly technical, administrative, or scholarly as these institutions operate as mini-cities.

The impact of higher education on the region’s economic vitality goes far beyond educating students and direct hires. Each year, approximately 50,000 students attend college in the region creating substantial demand for the goods and services provided by local businesses.

Quoting Governor Ned Lamont,

"Connecticut is the Silicon Valley of advanced manufacturing, plain and simple".

There are not many regions in the entire country that can claim over 300 hundred years of advancing manufacturing. Today's manufacturing is lean, green, and clean employing advanced technology including IoT, I4.0, AR, Mechatronics, and Machine Learning. Manufacturing in our region is diverse and spans firms that make precision instruments for medical and aerospace industries, security devices for information systems, specialty chemicals, fixtures in metals, plastics, and other materials using a range of technologies and processes from additive manufacturing, 3D printing to traditional stamping and machine tooling, and more. Some have been operating as family businesses for over five generations; others are larger, multinational corporations.

We have a highly skilled and productive workforce focusing on lean and innovative manufacturing. Workforce Alliance and our local colleges are educating the next generation of manufacturers through stackable certificate programs. These programs have been developed in collaboration with the private sector to ensure the students have the skills they need to enter the workforce.

Some of our larger manufacturing employers include BYK, Edgewell, Honeywell, Sargent/ Assa Abloy, Ulbrich Steel, among many others.

In 2019, Greater New Haven had 18 hotels in the development pipeline with a booming tourism industry. Workforce Alliance had launched a Hospitality Career Initiative, an immersive hospitality 5-week training done in collaboration with colleges and hospitality industry partners to meet expanding demand.

Clearly, the pandemic dramatically changed the immediate outlook for the lodging industry. Currently, there are two new hotels nearing completion, the Hotel Marcel and the Cambria New Haven, with a third hotel scheduled to open in 2023 in North Haven. The American Hotel & Lodging Association does not anticipate a full recovery in the U.S. until 2024. Being the home of Yale New Haven Health, Yale University, and six other colleges, we hope to rebound sooner as meetings and events return.

Arts, culture and tourism are major contributors to both the regional economy and the overall quality of life. The arts and entertainment industries were devastated by the pandemic but through robust networking among advocacy organizations and peer groups, the industry maximized the state and federal funding opportunities. As events and venues continue to reopen, public safety is a top priority.

To support the hospitality industry, REX Development maintains visitNewHaven.com, produces an annual visitors and relocation guide, distributes weekly newsletters, hosts familiarization tours for travel writers and tour operators, and attends a variety of tradeshow to reach both national and international audiences. During the pandemic we attended virtual tradeshow in preparation for the resumption of group travel.

According to the Connecticut State Office of Tourism's pre-COVID statewide Tourism Tracker, the industry generated:

- $14.7 billion in business sales supported by traveler spending
- $1.7 billion in taxes generated by visitor activity
- 82,688 jobs directly related to tourism

As of September 2021, over 75% of eligible Connecticut residents had received their first COVID vaccine. Building on this success is a priority for community well-being and the recovery of the hospitality and leisure industries.

To quantify the importance of technology in Greater New Haven, simply search any online job posting site. While we have a strong technology sector, many professional technology jobs can be found within the healthcare, biomedical and life sciences, higher education, and manufacturing sectors. With a highly educated workforce and initiatives to develop talent through certificate programs, we are investing for continued, inclusive growth in this sector. In support of these efforts, the State of Connecticut is rolling out tech specific programs such as the Innovation Corridor, Greentech, and Broadband for All.

In February 2021, Connecticut Technology Council and Marcum LLP announced the 2020 Marcum Tech Top 40 Companies.^{*} The following Greater New Haven tech companies received this distinction.

- Device42, Inc., Software, West Haven Data center and network management
- Precision Combustion, Inc., Energy, Environmental, and Green Technologies, North Haven Clean energy technology

Tsai Center for Innovative Thinking at Yale

Dan Renzetti/Yale University

Fueled by local creativity and Yale's research talent, New Haven is a hot bed for entrepreneurship.

Home to the second densest concentration of federal R&D funding in the country, Yale University's Office of Cooperative research supports a rapidly growing biotechnology startup ecosystem. Companies like Alexion, Achillion, BioHaven, and Arvinas are changing downtown's skyline, with several new bioscience towers and three laboratory incubators in development. Four recent IPO's, multiple acquisitions, and over a billion dollars in venture investment and distribution deals have made New Haven the third fastest growing city for venture capital investment in the country.

Software companies are growing across the city, hiring new coding talent from five local universities and a new Holberton-model software engineering school. Building on New Haven's healthcare strengths, companies like PatientWisdom, InboxHealth, and WellLinks are part of a hub of digital health services near Yale New Haven Hospital. Nearby, civic technologies reach across the globe to coordinate emergency responses (Veoci), municipal citizen service interactions (SeeClickFix), and college admissions (Technolutions). And at the new District technology campus, AR/VR coders help surgeons remotely coach life-saving procedures at remote clinics (SphereGen). With five coworking spaces across the city and a global network of software teams to partner with (MindTrust), both software talent and founders have places to grow in New Haven.

Artists, hobbyists, and inventors can find a home at MakeHaven, downtown's membership-based makerspace. Prototypes developed at MakeHaven have won federal design competitions over a dozen patents.

Aspiring entrepreneurs can find support for their project from CTNext, Connecticut Innovations, the Tsai Center for Innovative Thinking at Yale, the YNNH's Center for Health Care Innovation, several New Haven-based venture capital firms, and over ten different entrepreneur support programs for early and growth-stage businesses.

If you are ready to put your idea into action, Greater New Haven is the place to be.

Workforce

Greater New Haven produces a multi-faceted workforce. Graduates from our colleges and universities are highly-educated and prepared to enter the workforce. In addition, we also offer a range of services that allow high school graduates to earn stackable certificates in manufacturing, hospitality, and other areas a part of a direct to career path. Furthermore, the region's American Jobs Centers upskills workers for new opportunities.

Direct to Career Initiatives

Workforce development is high on the list of regional priorities. Collaboration among colleges, universities, Workforce Alliance and local boards of education are preparing students for existing jobs and in sectors with expected growth. Program development is created in concert with employers, government agencies and local municipalities. While Greater New Haven is best known for its degree programs, there are a host of pathways to success.

Gateway Community College offers a wide-range of certificate programs to jumpstart a career. Certificate programs include:

- Accounting
- Allied Health
- Automotive Technology
- Business Administration
- Clean Water Management
- Computer Aided Drafting (CAD)
- Computer Science/Web Design
- Culinary Arts
- Drug and Alcohol Recovery Counselor
- Engineering Technology
- Environmental Science
- Hospitality Management
- Mechanical Engineering Technology
- Solar Technology
- Water Management Technology

Getting Your Degree Graduates from Gateway Community College can easily transition to the Connecticut State Colleges and Universities system (including New Haven's own Southern Connecticut State University), University of New Haven and Quinnipiac University, bringing their earned credits with them.

Holberton School at DistriCT New Haven

At Holberton, you don't need coding experience or a college degree—just curiosity and determination.

Their philosophy is that people of all backgrounds, ethnicities, and education deserve the opportunity to learn. Unlike traditional coding boot camps, students have the option of paying upfront tuition or paying a percentage of their salary upon graduation.

Workforce Alliance (American Jobs Center)

workforcealliance.biz. Workforce Alliance should be the first stop for both jobseekers and businesses looking to hire or upskill their current workforce.

Skill Up for Manufacturing is designed to quickly channel unemployed and underemployed people into entry-level manufacturing jobs by providing the fundamentals that employers need in as little as 5 weeks. The program was designed with manufacturing employers who interact with students and discuss job opportunities. The program includes:

- Free 5-Week hybrid classroom & hands-on training
- Cash stipend during training
- Minimum 175 pre-apprenticeship hours
- Six Sigma certification
- OSHA 10 safety card
- Job development

The Health Careers Advancement Program

(HCAP) provides tuition assistance, professional development, and job placement to eligible job seekers. Individuals who have prior healthcare industry certifications can get help to return to school, add more skills and move up the career ladder!

Hospitality Career Initiative is a partnership between the University of New Haven and the New Haven-based nonprofit Workforce Alliance provided an immersion into the hospitality industry and job placement assistance.
